

Base Fiddles

by Harth, Winter MW

The clues are numbered in pairs. You must determine which solution is to be entered in which grid. In eight of the clues (four in each grid), the definition part must be fiddled with before it will accurately define the solution. This fiddling consists of, not necessarily in this order: bigram curtailment; deletion; heteronym; homonym; phonetic beheadment; rebus; third-letter change; transaddition. Fiddling may involve changing word boundaries. In the remaining eight clues, the definition may be read as is; however, the word it defines must be fiddled with to produce the word which is to be entered. This fiddling consists of, not necessarily in this order: letter shift; metathesis; repeated letter-change; reversal; second-letter change; spoonergram; transdeletion; transposal. In every case, subsidiary indications refer to the word that is entered into the diagram. All entries are 9C, one is hyphenated, one a two-word phrase.
